1. Overview

The Association for Furniture Studies (Barcelona, Spain) is pleased to present the III Ibero-American Congress on the History of Furniture, which will take place from September 16 – 19, 2020 in Barcelona, under the theme Connections/ Conexiones/Conexões.

The 2020 edition of the Congress will focus its theme on the temporal, geographical, material and formal connections of the history of Spanish, Portuguese and Latin American furniture.

This is an important opportunity for the cross-pollination of ideas amongst an international community of like-minded specialists, academics, makers and enthusiasts to advance and inspire new interest, research and creation in this field.

For this third edition, the AEM (Association for Furniture Studies) would like to recognize the lifetime achievement of María Paz Aguiló Alonso, a renowned specialist in the study of Spanish Furniture.

2. About the Congress

The Ibero-American Congress on the History of Furniture was an initiative born out of the University of Oviedo and the Portuguese Catholic University of Porto, with an aim to create a bi-annual event where the latest research in furniture studies could be showcased across different disciplines, chronologies and cultural perspectives.

The AEM, founded in 2004, serves as a scientific reference center for research and the dissemination of studies on historical and contemporary furniture. It will be the host organization for this edition and hopes to elevate the 2020 Congress into a space for the exchange of ideas and intellectual growth.

The third edition of the Congress will build on previous bi-annual initiatives and will celebrate the advancements of all those who have contributed to the Congress and the history of Ibero-American furniture. Likewise, it will be an occasion which will recognize the substantial contribution the Association for Furniture Studies has made through its work over the last sixteen years.

2.1 Collaborators

Both the Design Museum Barcelona and the Ramón Pla Armengol Foundation will be key collaborators in hosting the 2020 Congress over the course of four days. The Congress will also be supported by the research group GRACMON at the University of Barcelona, the Museum of Modernism of Catalunya and the Amatller Institute of Hispanic Art. Following the Congress, the University of Oviedo will publish and promote all the papers presented in its international magazine Res Mobilis.

3. Objectives

3.1 Scientific Objectives

- To advance knowledge of the spatial, temporal, material and formal connections between Spanish, Portuguese and Latin American furniture.

Firstly, we hope to highlight the underlying relationships between the centers of furniture production within the Spanish and Portuguese speaking territories and beyond.

Secondly, we hope to review furniture from the temporal evolution affecting those works that stay remain or otherwise and investigate the changes that occurred in furniture production, with regard to possible causes and effects. We will also aim to reflect on the historical and cultural connections that were essential for any change or evolution in production and commercial activity between the countries, including the Ibero-Americans among themselves.

Finally, turning to material and artistic elements, we will look at the obvious and not-so-obvious connections between works that are often difficult to explain. This section will allow us to refer to furniture's relationship with other human productions and advancements, particularly artistic ones.

- Publicize the latest studies on Spanish, Portuguese and Latin American furniture through the lens of 'connections'.
- Promote greater interest in Spanish, Portuguese and Latin American furniture and offering new points of view.
- Promote interest in Latin American furniture.

3.2 Additional Objectives:

- Strengthen links between those scholars who work in the field of Spanish, Portuguese and Latin American furniture.
- Familiarize scholars with important furniture collections in Barcelona.

4. Who Is It For and Why Participate?

The AEM is organizing this Congress for all those interested in furniture who want to advance this field of research. Given the theme of the Ibero-American Congress on the History of Furniture, we would like to make a special appeal for participation to those historians working outside Spanish or Portuguese speaking countries, who are studying aspects of furniture history related to these territories.

The 2020 Congress in Barcelona will be a celebratory event in the scientific community and beyond, that will hopefully strengthen interest in this field while recognize the effort and contribution of specialists in this sector, who are helping expand the knowledge and value of the furniture.

It is, without a doubt, a wonderful opportunity for growth in the study of furniture and an event that will provide an in-depth look at the past, present and future.

5. Methodology of the Congress

5.1 Roundtable Themes

Geographic Connections. Provenances.

Cataloguing and the study of furniture often leads to debates about provenance and the possible origins of works. In this sense, the connections between makers and clients are as relevant as the connections between projects, productions and ideas. This roundtable will be dedicated to studying and discussing geographic relations between Spain, Portugal and Latin American countries, as well as with countries that had relations with each or all of them respectively. Likewise, proposals capable of defining and specifying sources of furniture production, while reflecting on provenance issues will be open to discussion.

In the study of furniture, historians are often forced to indicate the date of production, which by necessity, tends to result in an approximation. This roundtable will discuss the difficulties surrounding source references and non-linear evolution and focus on studies that present a central discourse around temporality as well as those that analyze the causes and effects of furniture evolution.

Material and Artistic Connections. Influences.

Furniture is made because of necessities and cultural practices, but also of mentalities and artistic tendencies. Superficially, the design and production of furniture reveals the degree to which a society has developed and its connections with other human accomplishments. This roundtable will delve into analyzing the material and formal relations that exist between furniture production and other human advancements. Architecture and sculpture are the most closely related to furniture, however, throughout history many other sources have contributed to its development.

5.2 Congress Venues

Design Museum of Barcelona

The majority of the Congress will be held at the Design Museum which is located in the Design Hub of Barcelona in the Plaça de les Glòries. The building was designed by the MBM architecture firm and opened in 2013. The museum exhibits a selection of works from an important collection of Catalan decorative arts and Spanish design that spans from the 13th century to modern day. The Design Hub also houses a Documentation Center, including a library and archives that specialize in decorative arts and design.

During the Congress guided visits will be organized to the exhibition halls and museum's reserves.

The building also has practical facilities, including a restaurant and large outdoor patio for break-out meetings and networking.

Private Foundation of Ramón Pla Armengol, Barcelona

Nuria Pla Monseny (1916-2011) founded the 'Ramón Pla Armengol Foundation', in honor of her father. Among other activities, the Foundation promotes and showcases Nuria Pla's impressive collection of important Iberian and Ibero-American works of art and furniture in her family's private residence, built by her father at the beginning of the 20th century.

The welcome reception and cocktail for the 2020 Congress will take place in the residence and private garden of the Foundation and Congress attendees will have an opportunity to view the collection, which consists of 630 pieces of furniture, largely dating from the 16th to 18th centuries.

Barcelona's Modernism - visits to two important venues

On the last day of the Congress there will be visits to two important venues that showcase some of the best examples of Barcelona's Modernist furniture from the late 19th and early 20th centuries. The first stop will be Casa Amatller, a building which has been beautifully preserved including the original decor and furniture from this period. Both the building and the decor were designed by the renowned architect Puig i Cadafalch between 1898 and 1900.

The second stop will be to the Museum of Modernism of Catalunya, which houses one of the most important collections of Modernist furniture by some of the leading creators of that period including, Gaudí, Oleguer Junyent, Gaspar Homar and Joan Busquets.

5.3 Key Headings and Descriptors for Presentations

It is essential that the subject of each paper presented is about Spanish, Portuguese or Latin American furniture, however, these can be presented in one of three languages: Spanish, Portuguese or English. As such, to help facilitate better understanding across languages, it is advisable to include essential words or headings in all slide presentations.
